

The Aussie Pie Shop

G'day to one and all...

Pies, you've gotta love 'em. Beloved all around the world, particularly by the Great in Britain. With so much choice of great pies, you may well ask, what the hell is an Aussie pie and why would you choose them?

Well, it's a long story but essentially, as some of you will know, the Brits populated Australia with some of its great, but not so good, citizens, many years ago. They brought all manner of imports with them - cricket, beer, fish and chips and of course, their beloved pies.

The pie was the perfect accompaniment to Aussie life. They were portable and could be eaten anywhere; the backyard, the dining room table, at the cricket or down the beach. And so, the Aussie meat pie became an icon, it's own piece of international culinary genius. Probably up there with the invention of the sandwich.

Aussies eat them everywhere because - eaten alone - they are somewhere between a snack and a meal. They are lighter in texture than their British parent, crispy on the outside but full of soft meats in the middle. Perfect by themselves for lunch but they can also be part of a meal, if you add some mashed potatoes, gravy and other vegetables.

When COVID came, Australia locked down its borders which stopped many of us from being able to return to Australia, catch up with the family and down some Aussie pies. In a state of hungry frustration we baked some ourselves and then something unexpected happened. Everyone loved them, Aussies and Brits alike.

So, we started The Aussie Pie Shop and it has grown quickly over March and April from a home based piece of fun to a business run out of commercial kitchens in West London.

We then started another down under tradition, the Aussie Pie Drop. Here's how it works:

- We send you an email early each week with a list of the pies and other bakes that are available
- One of your staff acts as the Administrator of the Pie Drop
- You tell him/her what you would like to order that week and you pay your Administrator (preferably) or order through the website and pay direct, making sure to include your company details in the delivery instructions
- He/she collates the total order for your business and communicates that back to us by Thursday night
- We deliver to your business at an agreed time on Friday, they are collected by your Administrator and delivered to your desk.
- Each pie comes in its own recyclable box. It can be easily heated in an oven or can be refrigerated or frozen for the future
- Lastly, because we email you and you will have our details, you can always email us direct at other times for home delivery

Lastly, here is how you follow us and communicate with us, we would love to hear from you:
